New Resveratrol Supplement: Organic Cancer Cure

If we look at human history, doctors have been fighting with diseases such as cholera, syphilis, malaria etc. which killed many people. Due to medical research, people in our time are able to treat those diseases and prevent its onset.

Yet, with polluted environment and processed foods, there are diseases such as cancer that are still challenging the researchers. While researchers are coming up with solutions to prevent cancer, discoveries of its cure are on its way.

From the point where Dr. Sinclair found his magic ingredient - resveratrol, many sufficient researches have been conducted on its benefits. Resveratrol is a phytoalexin formed naturally by several plants under attack by pathogens such as bacteria or fungi, which can be found in red wine where the highest concentration of grape skins is present.

Cancer Studies:

Following form research published by by Robb et al. resveratrol acts as an agent in lifespan extension, cancer inhibition, (e.g. pancreatic cancer) and offers resistance to reperfusion injury and irradiation damage of cells.

Tests on animals, such as mice, show that resveratrol interacts with multiple molecular targets and has positive effects on the cells of breast, skin, gastric, colon, esophageal, prostate, and pancreatic cancer, and leukemia.

Moreover, resveratrol intervenes with all three stages of cancer - initiation, promotion and progression. It also possesses antioxidant and anti-angiogenic properties.

The research on humans is currently being conducted. Although it has not been published officially, resveratrol is claimed to aid in cancer prevention. The good news are the science is getting closer to winning the battle with the deadly disease.
