When we decided to change our life style and exit the rat race of city life we started seeking out our paradise. Residing on the California coast was great, but crowded no matter what activities we decided to do. We had heard about Colorado and the big areas of openness, especially in western Colorado with towns like Aspen and Vail that are smaller communities, but also popular cultural centers.

Flying into Grand Junction we started east on Interstate 70 to check out Aspen and Vail. It was late afternoon when we reached Glenwood Springs and felt this would be a good place to stop over and then decide on Aspen or Vail in the morning. We elected to rest at the old and quaint Hotel Colorado and after settling into our room we wanted to discover what Glenwood Springs gave us to see. The receptionist suggested some nice shops to see, but when we asked about restaurants he said it depends on the food you want to enjoy. Being in Colorado I wanted a juicy steak, but my sweetie insisted on seafood like back home. I told her the nearest ocean was many miles distant, so the seafood could never be as fresh as we could get back home, but she demanded. So her recommendation was a quaint restaurant directly across the foot bridge called Juicy Lucy's Steakhouse where we could have the best of both worlds.

Once we had finished visiting several little shops we found Juicy Lucy's Steakhouse and after a short duration at the historic bar we were shown our table. As I read the menu I noticed the best meal for me, Colorado Elk Sirloin. All natural grilled elk sirloin shaved and served on sautéed portabella mushrooms, but I was impressed by the {fish|seafood|fresh catch| selections on the choices. I was even more impressed by their daily offerings like; Beef Tenderloin in Tuscany Wine Sauce or Fresh fish Mequite Grilled over the BBQ. I had to ask about the freshness and quality since it was obvious the closest ocean was many miles away. He implied they only use the finest ingredients and the fish is flown in each morning six days a week. My wife choose the Sea Scallops and I will tell you this if you didn't know you were in {the rocky mountains|Colorado|dry regions of the country| you would think you were eating in a seafood restaurant near the cost.

Next day on the tour we decided on Basalt, and fell in love with the small towns from Glenwood Springs to Aspen. Here we could ski in the winter, fly fish in the summer, hike, bike and be by ourselves, or go to a play or concert almost any night. We found our wonderful retirement place and knowing that no matter where we end up in the valley we were only a few minutes away from the best seafood in the middle of the Rocky Mountains. Who would have guessed that a fine dining establishment named Juicy Lucy's Steakhouse would help us make one of the greatest decisions ever.
